With the completion of the NBN build and projected upgrades, the increasing rollout of 5G, and the remarkable dependence on broadband services during COVID-19, the debate about broadband services needs to shift to a long-term perspective on how their full benefits can be realised. From its work over the last two years the NBN Futures Group has developed a proposal for a bipartisan National Broadband Strategy in a comprehensive report, which will be launched at the forum. In this forum the Group will put the case for the development of such a strategy and suggest components and key issues to be considered.

Program:

12:00 (AEDT) Start

Opening: Chairperson, John Burke

"Towards a National Broadband Strategy, 2020-2030", Jim Holmes

TelSoc President and NBN Futures Group member, Jim Holmes, will outline the rationale for a national strategy, key components and particular conclusions that the group has reached.

Supplementary remarks by NBN Futures Group members

Additional Commentators, including:

- Deena Shiff, Chair, Australian Broadband Advisory Council
- Teresa Corbin, CEO, Australian Communications Consumer Action Network (ACCAN)
- Dr Helen Haines MP, Independent Federal Member for Indi

Additional expert panellists, Commentators – TBA
