On 12 March 2022, a position paper by the Australian Broadband Advisory Council (ABAC), chaired by Ms Deena Shiff, was released on the future of Creative Industries (Creative-Tech) as part of a series of papers formed by various industry expert working groups in the areas of Creative Industries, Agri-Tech, Construction, Health and Education. The Creative Industries position paper was prepared by ABAC members Mr Zareh Nalbandian and Mr Vince Pizzica and endorsed by the Creative Industry Expert Working Group. The purpose of the paper was to provide advice and recommendations to the Minister for Communications, Cyber Safety and the Arts on ways to maximise the benefits of the National Broadband Network (NBN) and other high-speed networks in key sectors of the economy.

This talk outlines the key findings of the paper and discusses briefly other key global and local activities post the publication of the paper that are of note, such as COVID-19, the 2023 Writers' Strike and the concerns around AI technology deployment in Creative Industries.
